Saturday, April 27: 8:30am-12:15pm

Saturday, April 27: 12:30pm-4:15pm

Today, the third and fourth generations of OC Produce are working hard to make sure that O.C. residents have access to dependable and delicious, local grown produce. These dedicated farmers continue to grow exceptional fruits and vegetables within the urban boundaries of this dynamic county. “Urban agriculture has many different dimensions. Plan to see aggressive urban agriculture activity in 3 different scales. From small back yard production to intensive vertical and horizontal edible landscape systems both indoor and outdoor...to full-scale commercial conventional and certified organic production systems. Witness the re-purposing of underutilized public and private properties to productive, dynamic working landscapes that help to create multiple benefit solutions for our farmers and communities.”
