CONFERENCE TEAM LEADER DESCRIPTION

Conference Team Leaders will serve as the on-site manager for the conference. The Team Leader will assist with and be responsible for coordinating preparation, travel and on-site logistics, the delivery and evaluation of conference curriculum, and will manage and provide support and coaching for all Facilitators, under the supervision of state staff. The Team Leader will report to and work closely with the State Leadership Development Coordinator and the Asst. State FFA Advisor, with additional duties as assigned.

**The team leader is not encouraged or expected to defer their semester/ quarter of college.*

Team Leader position requirements:

- At least one year of facilitation experience with California FFA with either GLC or MFE, or having already served in a Team Leader capacity during another conference
- Be able to think strategically and big-picture logistically while coordinating the event
- Be able to lead groups of peer facilitators and staff, often who are close in age, and manage conflict
- Demonstrate respect and professionalism when interacting with host sites and teachers, while also clearly communicating needs and expectations
- Possess excellent facilitation skills and the ability to coach others in their development
- Be able to multitask and balance multiple issues and priorities at the same time
- Be able to work independently while supervising a conference team, and as part of a greater team of staff
- All requirements of a Leadership Conference Facilitator
- Staff should not take the semester or quarter off

General Notes:

- Most GLC conferences are scheduled during the last two weeks of August into September and the first two weeks of October over a three to four-day period, typically including Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.
  - Staff should plan to miss a minimum of four/five days of school, but as many as eight days with travel depending on conference scheduling, host sites and their classes. The aim is for conferences to take place within the first four weeks of University starting, which reduces the impact of missed days (for those at a UC or Poly, this may be before courses begin).
- Most MFE and ALA conferences are scheduled during the first eight weekends of January and into February on Fridays/Saturdays, with a few back-to-back conferences on Sundays/Mondays.
  - Staff should plan to miss a minimum of two days of school, but as many as ten days with travel depending on how staff structure their Friday class schedule.
- Staff should consider modifying their academic schedule to allow for free days or flexible courses. Staff should communicate with instructors to notify them in advance of their absence; they will receive a letter from the state describing the responsibilities of this opportunity that can assist with missing school. The Team Leader will mentor and provide guidance on creating work/ academic life balance.
